

Right to Informed Consent for current, ongoing trials of 'gene therapy' (otherwise called 'covid-19 vaccines'):

Asking others if they have been vaccinated is rude and none of anybody's business. Here are some important ethical and legal considerations:

An array of international human rights conventions enshrine the rights of the individual to life, liberty, and bodily integrity, and give the individual voluntary consent rights with regards to medical treatments.

- The formulation of the Nuremberg Code gave individuals the right to give voluntary consent to medical treatments.
- The UNESCO Universal Declaration on Bioethics and Human Rights, Article 6.1 states: Any preventive, diagnostic, and therapeutic medical intervention is only to be carried out with the prior, free, and informed consent of the person concerned, based on adequate information.
- The UN International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights Article 7: No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment. In particular, no one shall be subjected without his free consent to medical or scientific experimentation.
- Convention on Human Rights and Biomedicine (Oviedo, 4.IV.1997), Article 5: An intervention in the health field may only be carried out after the person concerned has given free and informed consent to it.
- The World Medical Association (WMA) International Code of Medical Ethics states: "A physician shall: respect a competent patient's right to accept or refuse treatment."
- The Medical Protection Society, says this on consent: "Respect for patients' autonomy is expressed in consent law; to impose care or treatment on people without respecting their wishes and right to self-determination is not only unethical but illegal."

We, therefore, have the right to bodily integrity, and to give voluntary consent to medical treatments.

It is a fundamental human right to decide what happens to our bodies and legally NO one can force anyone to be vaccinated!

No one has the 'right' to demand that others are vaccinated.

My body, my choice. This is an unalienable right.
